Roxy was surrendered because of family issues and they could no longer give her the time. She is just gorgeous and so people orientated. Roxy is great with other dogs and I often see her running flat out being chased or chasing another dog and just having a ball, but once she has had enough she wants inside. When she comes in she just wants to be with you. If you are sitting down, she is at your feet but if you get up, she is up too.

She wasn’t house trained when she came but that is definitely improving. I don’t think she was allowed inside in her previous home. Roxy just loves going in the car, loves going for walks and just loves being with you. This little girl needs to go to someone that is home most of the time and wants a companion as that would be what Roxy would love. She is a beautiful little dog and deserves a loving home. She is great with other dogs but I think would be just as happy with her humans.
